Mary recently completed her eighth year as assistant director of the National Federation of State High School Associations (NFHS). Among her many responsibilities include serving as editor and national rules interpreter for basketball and softball, staff liaison for the NFHS Officials Association, coordinating the NFHS Officials Education Program, and workshop organization for the NFHS Summer Meeting and National Athletic Administrator's Conference.

In November 2005, she was named the NCAA coordinator of women's basketball officiating where she coordinates the assigning of officials to the Division I Women's Basketball Championship, reviews programs that promote better communication between officials, conference coordinators of officials, coaches and the NCAA, and helps to promote consistency in the interpretation of NCAA women's basketball rules and officiating.

Mary also serves on several committees and boards, including the Officiating Development Alliance, the Women's Basketball Hall of Fame Board of Directors, and the Amateur Softball Association's Council and Equipment Standards Committee.

A former high school teacher (physical education, health, mathematics, computer science), coach (softball, volleyball, tennis) and administrator, she holds a master's degree in athletic administration from Western Illinois University.
